RFID tagging. Effective resident wandering detection active throughout a facility

From basic door monitoring to a fully integrated site-wide resident real-time location monitoring system, SEDtag is an efficient method for detecting and to help prevent residents from wandering. SEDtag will sound an alarm at the door and at the Carers' Station (optionally, also to mobile devices) when a resident enters a restricted area.

SEDtag can also be used to automatically lock doors to prevent residents from unsafe areas. SEDtag can also double as a door security alarm system at night (or at a specified time) for added security.

All exits from the safe area are monitored using an "Alarm portal" RFID reader. As soon as an RFID tag comes near an exit, an alarm occurs showing the specific RFID tag, the name of the resident and the location. The alarm signal is transmitted to the Carers' station alarm panel, and/or (if connected) sent to your existing Nurse call system.

WANDERING RESIDENT DETECTION

SEDtag for wandering resident detection adds a dependable safeguard and provides piece of mind to help prevent residents from wandering into potentially dangerous situations.
